Sealing | Season 2 | Music. According to host Nick Cannon, Wednesday night's TV lineup offered the Christmas present we've all been waiting for. Ooh, Peloton bike? You shouldn't have, Nick! Masked Singer semifinals. Oh. And that's good. In its second installment this week, Fox's maniacous music competition raised not one but two of its incognito contestants. That leaves only three players left for next week's finals. But who are these players going to be? Let's review the performances! FOX | Fox's choice to perform Donny Hathaway's song This Christmas makes me reconnect with that Patti LaBelle tree-burning clip. But I'm going to resist. Its version was very smooth, and the visual of a ballerina in a snow globe was a nice touch. You killed like Rudolph! Judge Jenny McCarthy cried after his number, and while I have no idea what that means, I advocate the enthusiasm with which he was delivered. (My guess: whose line is that anyway? Wayne Brady. And oops, I guess I couldn't resist after all.) ROTTWEILER | I assumed all the performers would choose holiday songs for their choices this week, but the big dog blew it to shreds when he made a stripped-down version of Mr. Brightside's The Killers. After their songs this week, each singer gave the judges' panel the gift of a clue: Rottweiler's gift was a drawing of him with all of them, which... Thank you? (My guess: American Idol alum Chris Daughtry.) THINGAMAJIG | Who's got the Christmas spirit? Thingamajig, that's who! The Greens cut Bing Crosby's Winter Wonderland after a setup package that referred to his difficult year with plenty of setbacks and adversity and included someone wearing a knee brace; the choice of song didn't exactly scream I prevailed!, but we'll let it happen. (My guess: Indiana Pacers linebacker Victor Oladipo.) FLAMINGO | I admit, I didn't think Pinky had the gravitas to pull off Jeff Buckley's Allievy. But when that smoke machine started pumping and she got a minor fall and a main elevator? I was on a boat. Her clues included a suitcase with a cheetah print and this mysterious statement: I was baptized in Israel. (My Adrienne Bailon.) Masked Singer Season 2 Clues and Speculation LEOPARD | During the entire Leopard's performance of Sweet Charity's Hey Big Spender, all I wanted was Sam Rockwell as Bob Fosse, standing on the side of the stage and critiquing feline every sleaze move. Instead of that impossible order, the cheeky version we got was pretty great. (My guess: Seal.) UNMASKINGS | Thingamajig Oladipo was found to be. Leopard Seal was found to be. Now it's your turn. What do you think of the semifinals? Hit comments with your predictions about who will take it all! Who's the leopard in The Masked Singer? At first fans were convinced it was the leopard of Omarosa, but clues now point to a male singer like RuPaul, Dennis Rodman and this red carpet icon. Watch the masked singer on Wednesdays at 8 p.m. on FOX. The text continues below the adUPDATE: Appearance can be deceptive, and Leopard held a gender bending performance on October 2, which made us throw all previous assumptions out the window. Based on what we've seen, our best guesses now are Pose star Billy Porter, Dennis Rodman, and RuPaul. The last one is a distant possibility, however -- we heard Ru say a lot and it doesn't sound like it. Ahead of the premiere of the second season of The Masked Singer, fans are already speculating which celebrities could potentially be hiding under these extravagant costumes. After peeking into this season's 16 contestants, fans (including us) are endlessly working to sing the first clues that have been given. The text continues below the ad One of the best costumes that caught our attention was Leopard. Although he didn't give much away, the celeb spoke in a fake British accent (to hide his actual voice), Who's the Leopard? Fans have already begun to narrow the search with their best guesses. Source: FoxArticle continues below the ad During a sneak peek clip Leopard revealed that the level of security and confidentiality on the set of the hit Fox show reminded this person of the Secret Service. The masked celebrity even added: I was spotted with the president. The reality series host, Nick Cannon, also revealed that this celeb costume was designed to specifically hide their natural silhouette. After the initial clues were discovered, fans began to speculate which celeb might be hiding under grandiose costumes. LEOPARD probably @OMAROSA - Her comment about being with the president and not shying away from reality TV... Hmm? #TheMaskedSinger [sic]. Well, we know that Omarosa Manigault not only appeared on the reality competition series The Apprentice, but also served as a former political aide to President Donald Trump. The text continues below the adSource: A GettyAnother fan guessed that the celeb underneath the mask was probably our former first lady, Leopard, by Michelle Obama (??? I don't really know), a person tweeted. While we understand its association with The president and secret service find it hard to imagine the former first minister wearing a giant leopard mask. The text continues below the ad So the clue could lie in this celeb's clothes. Leopard is donning an English period piece ball dress, and Michelle is a former nickname with the Secret Service's Renaissance. So we have to ask ourselves... Source: FoxArticle continues below the ad The identities of these 16 celebrities are kept under lock and key to the point that even panellist Jenny McCarthy compared the show's level of confidentiality to the season finale of Game of Thrones. During the promotion, it was revealed that these contestants have a total of 140 films, 22 gold records, 20 platinum records, six multi-platinum records, 31 Billboard No. 1 singles, 19 Emmy wins, 10 GRAMMY wins, seven Super Bowl appearances, five Hall of Famers, 15 marriages and eight divorces. Jenny told Entertainment Tonight that the second season will be much bigger and better. She also admitted that she was trying to look for clues behind the scenes, hoping to discover the identity of these celebs. However, they continue to disguise their body language even offstage. Sometimes they'd crouch down and walk past me to make them look shorter! She said. Adding: I was like, 'Oh my God!' It's so wild how confidential and secret it is [it's all].
